

ABSTRACT

An internet moving image linking system is provided that can reduce link information necessary for the related 5 information in a moving image linkage. The internet moving image linking system includes a server and a user terminal.
The server has means for judging the presence or absence of a link destination based on point time information and point coordinate information each transmitted from the 10 user terminal.